placed on throne by RICIMIR.

April 467

Emperor Leo's nominee ANTHEMIUS was proclaimed emperor in Italy, but his great expedition against the vandals was a complete disaster

467-472

Anthonis was emperor

Apr. 12, 467

ANTHEMIUS was proclaimed emperor of the West, 1 he had already fought the Valamir Goths. He was an excellent general and personal experience had convinced him that the Goths were the number-one enemy of the empire and had to be eliminated in the West & in the East

467/468

While VALAMIR was busy in 467/68 subjugating the SADAGARES who had remained behind in the interior of Pannonia, a different son of Attila's, DENOLICIT by name, tried to capture the city of BASSIANAE between Belgrade and SREMSKA MITROVICA. VALAMIR turned back and defeated the Huns, who then "for ever after" left the Goths in peace.

The SARAGORI (an eastern Huronish tribe) having the ALP^{ti} and other races, marched against the Persians. First, they came to the Caspian Gates, and, finding a Persian fortress established in them turned to another route. Through this they went against the Iberians and ravaged their country and then overran the lands of the Armenians. For defending against the Huns, the Persians

When the Romans threatened Carthage in 467, the Goths as well as the Suevi envoys who had accompanied the Romans withdrew in a hurry. They probably did not have a clear conscience. We do not know if Euric formally abrogated the foedus (of 416/418) but it is certain that he took action regarded as a breach of the treaty.

C 467

Shortly after EURIC had assumed power, he annulled the "foedus" with the empire

467-472

ANTHEMIVS was empern of West at Rome

Leo I was empern of East 457-474

Anthemius was a capable general. He had once fought the Pannonian Ostrogoths and he immediately recognized how dangerous Euric was.
